

September 9, 2008

Up in the Atmosphere

Atmospheric Architecture by Tracy Morris

The bedroom is airy and bright with the morning sun.

But that thud-a-whir generator just outside the window makes it feel like you're living at a novice bass guitarist's practice session.

Interior design whiz Tracy Morris will step in and restore peace and tranquility.

Using an approach called atmospheric architecture, Morris will break down your space by sense. Tackling sight, smell, and all the rest, she will balance a room to create your desired ambience. She can zero in on the comfort of clean linens, the textures of sofa pillows, or the vibe of music to create the perfect feel throughout your house.

So while that noise may not disappear, you'll feel high as a kite.

It's just sense-ational.

Tracy Morris Design (202-486-6209 or tracymorrisdesign.com).